Join us July 1st as we raise our voices in protest and witness and demand justice for all. The struggle for freedom has been enmeshed with the culture and history of America since its earliest days. This struggle did not end with the revolution rather it has been carried forward through the abolition movement, labor movement and the civil rights movement. To this day the struggle continues. Currently we have two classes of workers and residents - those with rights and full protection under the law and those who are being exploited and persecuted because of their immigration status. We are all God's children and therefore one people regardless of our immigration status. It is our moral obligation to demand the release of “those bound unjustly, untying the thongs of the yoke; Setting free the oppressed”
Isaiah 58: 6
