The Adult is Found in the Child

One theme found in many ancient writings is that a person's childhood foreshadows their adulthood. The common phrase is, "we find the man in the boy."

In today's gospel reading Luke does just that, points to who Jesus will become by looking at who he is as a pre-teen. This whole section is pointing to Easter—Jerusalem on Passover, a three day disappearance, declared Son of God—even as we're very much in the season of Christmas.

- ✎ What does it mean that Jesus makes the same claim for himself (Son of God) that is made for the emperor Octavius? What do we do about competing understandings of God at work in the world, competing representatives of God even?
- ✎ Today we also read about Samuel and his family. How do the younger years of Jesus, John the Baptist and Samuel all fit into God's actions in the world?

From our mother's womb you have known us, O God. You call us to follow you through all our days and seek us even when we wander. As we advance in years, clothe us with your love, that we may grow in grace and find favor in your sight; through Jesus Christ. Amen.
